

WHAT IF?

What if the body of Christ had unlimited funds to shine their light into the world? The possibilities are endless! The media bombards our society with worldly thinking and focuses on everything but Christ. As a result, people are getting caught by the snares of the devil because they do not see the things of God on a daily basis. The only messages they get are violence, sex and materialism.

The average child watches 8,000 televised murders and 10,000 acts of violence before finishing elementary school. That figure doubles by the time they reach the age of eighteen. What if there were Christian programming on major television networks? What if There were messages about salvation instead of commercials? What if the word of God was written on billboards instead of cigarette and alcohol promotions? What if every week there was a Christian movie at the box office like Mel Gibson's the Passion of Christ?

900,000 teenagers become pregnant every year. There have been 40 million reported abortions since 1973 and 4,000 abortions take place every day. What if there were Christian counseling centers that replaced Planned Parenthood and other organizations that suggest abortion to pregnant teens? What if there were a campaign to lead young people to the Lord rather than finding their approval in drugs pre-marital sex and eating disorders? What if there were Christian after school centers that would instill the word of God in children and keep them off the streets and drugs?

The rate of teenage murders by classmates in school have risen five times since the Columbine tragedy. What if prayer returned to schools and there were centers to help children like those in Columbine?

22 million Americans are involved in substance abuse. What if there were Christian rehab centers and hospitals to share the Gospel with those who are in their darkest hour?

In the United States 2.3 million people experience homelessness and one million of them are children. Over one million people have worked as prostitutes in the United States and 95% of teen prostitutes have been sexually abused. What if there were financial help for the homeless and prostitutes that would enable them to have a place to live and get a job? Not just feed them, but get them off the street and keep them off the streets

The US Justice Dep. Reports that 62% of men released from prison will be re-arrested and 40% re-incarcerated within three years of release. There are currently 3 million in prison and 4.6 million on probation or parole. What if there were Christian programs to reform criminals?

One Million Children are reported to be abused every year. What if Christian camps that work with abused children and children with disabilities had more money?

What if people in undeveloped countries of the world could be fed both physically and spiritually?

What if Christians were elected into government positions from local to Federal?

What if Christian adoption agencies had more money to save children born in communist countries that face certain death?

What if people in all nations could learn of Christ's salvation?
